DECIDE LAW'S UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Opinion of Supreme Court of Errors Regarding Employers Liability Act—Brought Out by the Hoxie and Mondou Cases—Will go to United States Supreme Court—Other Decisions.

At New Haven the Connecticut supreme court of errors Tuesday afternoon handed down a decision in favor of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company in the cases of William H. Hoxie and Edgar C. Mondou, actions in damages, finding no error in the decision of the court by unanimous opinion declared that the employers' liability act, passed by congress on April 22, 1903, is unconstitutional.

In the Hoxie case, after the railroad as the defendant in the superior court had set up the plea that the action is unconstitutional, the case was taken to the supreme court. The court in the parallel case of Mondou, who also was a railroad brakeman injured while coupling cars, the federal government intervened with a plea to uphold the constitutionality of the act, the department of justice being represented by a special attorney. The arguments were made at New Haven last month. The opinion was written by Chief Justice Baldwin. It consisted of themselves, the dismissal of the plaintiff's action; but further.

4-The act, so far as it concerns this case, is wholly void by reason of certain of its provisions which cannot be separated from the rest.

Will Be Carried Higher.

The Mondou suit is brought by Brown & Perle, 1908, to Edgar C. Mondou of this city, who was injured while acting as a brakeman on the Shore Line division of the New Haven railroad, and as the result lost one of his hands. The case attracted much attention, being the first to be brought under this law, the Hoxie case following. A third case, that of Baldwin, adm., vs. the New Haven road, is also hanging fire, awaiting the decision in the Mondou case.

In his opinion, Chief Justice Baldwin says: The act of congress now in question creates a statutory right of action. It is one not in the common law, nor in chancery. It is one which, if warranted by the constitution of the United States, may, under their general laws regulating the jurisdiction of the circuit courts of the United States, whenever damages exceeding $2,000 are claimed, be tried in the federal court. It is one which, if warranted by the constitution of the United States, may, under their general laws regulating the jurisdiction of the circuit courts of the United States, whenever damages exceeding $2,000 are claimed, be tried in the federal court.

Two questions present themselves at the threshold of the present case. First, is whether congress intended by this act to authorize the institution of an action under it in the courts of the state. The second is whether, if such were its intentions, it had power to do so.

WANTS PRIVILEGE TO CHANGE BRIDGE APPROACHES.

Layout Regarding New Railroad Bridge at New London Before Legislative Committee.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, July 20.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad today has its lawyers have disclosed that there is in its charter nothing which will make it possible for the railroad to come to the railroad commission for the approval of its new layout of approaches to the new railroad bridge which it is to build just above the present draw, and therefore a bill giving this right has been drawn and the railroad is now endeavoring to have it passed by the legislature. The bill is now in the hands of a committee measure.

It was explained by Attorneys Robinson and Spook for the road that the plan is to build a new four-track roller lift bridge about 150 feet above the present bridge, and the plan has been approved by Major Taylor, the engineer officer in charge of the district for the federal government. It will be necessary to change the approaches from those of the present bridge on both sides of the river, but there is no present plan on the part of the company to build a new route around back of New London and nothing of that sort is covered in the bill referred.

The old bridge is to be left where it is and to be transformed into a highway bridge by the substitution of a roller lift draw on one side of the present swing draw, the other side to be closed by a permanent span. Plans for the work similar to those which have been approved by Major Taylor and are now before the war department for approval were displayed to the committee of which Representative Crane of Groton is a member, and Representative Cronin of New London was present to look after the interests of the town.

According to these plans the new draw will give a space of 150 feet to the city, and the present draw gives a space of 200 feet on both sides of the central pier, which seemed to Mr. Crane likely to cause the road trouble, but that is not the business of the state government. The fact that Mr. Robinson stated that the road company has been looking up to believe that the new bridge is to be built soon.

THREE NEW SUITS IN SUPERIOR COURT.

One a Divorce and Two Are Appeals from Probate.

In the superior court there have been three new suits filed since the clerk of this court which are down for the September term. They are as follows:

Freelove A. Miller of Norwich is suing Everett O. Miller for divorce, claiming intolerable cruelty between January 1st, 1904, and May 28th, 1905. She asks the custody of two minor children and alimony to the sum of $4,000. They were married January 19, 1902, her maiden name being Freelove A. Bailey.

William S. Fish and S. Warren Fish of Groton take an appeal from the decision of the probate court of Groton in admitting to probate the will of Hannah E. Grunley.

Edward B. True, Jr., son of Sarah Lawrence True, who was a niece of Sebastian D. Lawrence, takes an appeal from the will of S. D. Lawrence, claiming he was appointed executor when the will was admitted to probate and did not have legal notice to be given to him. True, Jr., lives in Washington, D. C., and is five years old.

The Occum School District.

Selectman A. D. Lathrop and Town Council are bringing by Representative H. W. Tibbitts before the committee on education at the Capitol on Tuesday, July 20, the school matters in what is known as the Shetucket school district, which controls the joint school district at Norwich and Groton.

Verdes is appointed by the Sprague and Libson. A resolution has been drawn up which it is believed will satisfy the committee and serve to care for the district trouble.
